Babur The Tiger - Babur (Persian: بابر, translit. Bābur, lit. 'tiger'; 14 February 1483 – 26 December 1530), born Zahir ud-Din Muhammad, was the ultimate founder and first Emperor of the Mughal dynasty in the Indian subcontinent. He was a direct descendant of Emperor Timur the Great (Tamerlane) from what is now Uzbekistan. Early years. Hence, Bābur, though called a Mughal, drew most of his support from Turks, and the empire he founded was Turkish in character. His family had become members of the Chagatai clan, by which name they are known. He was fifth in male succession from Timur and 13th through the female line from Genghis Khan. Babur (eye of) "The Tiger" Babur "The Tiger" (his real name was Zahir-ud-din Muhammad) is widely known as the first of the great Mughal Emperors because he founded the Empire with his invasion and conquest over India in 1526.... Babur the Tiger. And the heat and dust are unbearable." (from the Baburnama) Babur had brought with him to Hindustan a taste for luxury and culture, the influences of his Islamic faith and a love of the order, symmetry and formality of the gardens of his native land. Fresh from a country of verdant landscapes,...
